

Flatlined

30 5 5

Chapter 1 by Hannah

It was a car crash. Of all the things it could have been, it had to be a car crash. It was a car crash that killed my girlfriend, that killed my best friend, and inevitably, it was a car crash that killed me.

I don't remember if my parents cried, or my brother, or anyone at school, all I remember from then, was the sound of the flatline on the machine. Since then, I can't remember anything about my past, or my life, except for my girlfriend who I loved more than anyone could imagine. She was the only reason I stayed. I stayed to keep her memory alive. I didn't physically die, but every fiber of my being died that day that she flatlined.

Chapter 2 by the smiling man

I cared about her more than I cared about anyone else in the world. I swear, I cared about her more than I cared about myself. I couldn't deal with the fact that she's gone, she's not going to come back, she's never going to kiss me again. I felt like it was the end of the world, everything was collapsing, but the only thing collapsing was my heart.

Chapter 3 by m a r i e

As I lay in the hospital bed, my life with her flashed before my eyes... when we first met, the first date, first kiss, everything. Now, I'm alone, and I'm wondering what happened to my hands, friends, family, future, and most important...

See more of Story Wars

Login

or

Create new account

Chapter 4 by SaintSavika

But it doesn't have to be this way forever, at least for others. Life moves on. People forget, and pity you for not. And when pity ends, annoyance begins. Nobody knows why I can't move on. Or why I'm so distanced.

She would have.

Write a draft for chapter 5 of 8

i You need to login before writing - click here

Continue the story

☐ Flag as mature ☐ receive feedback

Submit draft

Write a comment...

About | Rooms | Feedback |

See more of Story Wars

Login

or

Create new account